CHAQUE BOUTEILLE RACONTE UNE HISTOIRE

HANDS, TASTES, AND CONVICTIONS

At VINESSEN, everything begins with a shared journey — a team united around a project in which everyone deeply believes. Regardless of roles or responsibilities, everyone moves in the same direction, driven by shared energy and a constant desire to do things well.

There are hands that select, organise, prepare and move bottles every day. Simple gestures, sometimes invisible, yet essential. Tastes are shaped collectively, nourished by dialogue, curiosity and experience. Mutual trust and commitment allow each individual to grow and fully contribute to the project.

What unites the team are strong convictions: respect for the work of producers, the time devoted to things done properly, and the desire to offer sincere wines — wines made to be opened and shared.

Behind this collective dynamic lies a clear vision, carried by a unifying project. Everyone has their place, all committed to the same ambition, convinced that success is built first and foremost on the strength of the collective.

SO THAT EVERY BOTTLE TELLS A STORY.

PROVENCE

Ideally located between the Alps and the Mediterranean, the Provence vineyard stretches across three departments: Var, Bouches du Rhône, and a small area of Alpes Maritimes. Provence benefits from a long history and a distinctive terroir that have earned it strong recognition for the quality of its wine production.

A FAVOURABLE CLIMATE FOR VINEGROWING

The Mediterranean climate is particularly well suited to viticulture. Sunny, dry and warm, it provides vineyards with around 2,800 hours of sunshine per year. Winds play an essential role in the regional climate. The strongest and most well known is the Mistral. Extremely dry, it helps cool the vineyard and, above all, naturally protects it by reducing humidity related diseases..

ROLLE

Like other southern vineyards, Provence offers a wide range of grape varieties. Grenache, Cinsault, Marselan, Mourvèdre, Syrah and Cabernet Sauvignon are used for red and rosé wines, while Ugni Blanc, Rolle, Grenache Blanc, Clairette, Marsanne, Sémillon and Bourboulenc are found in white wines. All wine styles are produced here, yet rosé wines largely dominate. Provence is the leading rosé producing region in France, with nearly 90% of its total production dedicated to this style, representing an average annual output of around 150 million bottles.

PROTECTED GEOGRAPHICAL INDICATION

The Protected Geographical Indication IGP Provence highlights wines that reflect the full diversity of their terroir. More flexible than appellations of origin, this European designation guarantees that grapes mainly come from the Provençal region, while offering winemakers greater freedom in blending and creation. The result is fresh and fruit driven wines that extend the Mediterranean art of living

MULTIPLE APPELLATIONS OF ORIGIN

Côtes de Provence, the largest appellation in the region, is a major reference of the Mediterranean vineyard. It is internationally recognised for its pale, elegant and refreshing rosé wines, while also producing structured and expressive red wines, as well as bright and aromatic whites. The very sunny climate, moderated by the Mistral wind, allows for optimal ripeness while preserving freshness. The diversity of soils contributes to a wide range of expressions.

Since 2005, the appellation has highlighted several defined geographical areas: Sainte Victoire, Fréjus, La Londe, Pierrefeu and Notre Dame des Anges. Alongside it, Bandol represents the other major Provençal signature, renowned for its powerful and age worthy red wines..

A ROSÉ TERROIR, BUT NOT ONLY

Although this vineyard of nearly 27,000 hectares is best known for its rosé wines, which account for 90% of production, the diversity of its terroirs and the richness of its history make it a leading region for white wines as well. These wines are rarer, yet particularly elegant and endowed with strong aromatic intensity.

ROLLE, THE LEADING WHITE GRAPE OF PROVENCE

Widely used in blends and highly valued by winemakers, Rolle has become the cornerstone of white wine production in the region. Its success lies in its excellent adaptation to the Mediterranean climate. It withstands heat well while producing wines that are lively, balanced and aromatic, marked by notes of citrus, white flowers and sometimes almond.

Les Vignerons de la Sainte Baume

Founded in 1912, the Rougiers cooperative has long been driven by passionate winegrowers, both men and women. Today, 60 winegrowers contribute the fruit of their harvest, with ten of them accounting for nearly 90% of total volumes. This human scale allows for highly efficient collective work and guarantees grapes of consistently high quality.

Above all, the winegrowers are farmers, deeply rooted in their land, who pool their expertise and know how. The balance between ancestral gestures and the most modern techniques creates ideal conditions for crafting outstanding cuvées. The people behind the vineyards are also present in the cellar. Our cellar master and winemaker, passionate about the art of blending, carefully refines and matures these great Provençal wines with pride.

LA FRATERNELLE

Created 121 years ago, the cooperative has borne the name Vignerons de la Sainte-Baume since its merger with the Nans-les-Pins cooperative in 1993. It is one of the oldest cooperatives in the region.

Today, the vineyard extends across the communes of Mazaugues, Nans-les-Pins, Rougiers, Saint-Maximin-la-Sainte-Baume and Tourves. Viticulture is structured around two main approaches: organic farming, which represents around 70% of the vineyard area, and High Environmental Value certification, covering 95% of the surfaces.

These wines, expressive and highly aromatic, are regularly recognised in competitions and have received numerous awards. The cooperative is run in a family spirit by its Board of Directors, together with its president and three employees, fostering a strong sense of pride in their shared “Maison”. This year, the cooperative was awarded 61 medals, making it the most awarded cooperative in Provence..

DOMAINE
LES TROIS TERRES

"In 2000, I left my profession as a professional firefighter, a job I had passionately pursued for 20 years, with the aim of preserving the history and safeguarding the family heritage that means so much to me and to my ancestors. Coming from a farming family, my grandfather taught me the art of pruning, while my father passed on all his knowledge, blending tradition with the legacy of this family culture.

In 2000, I undertook studies in viticulture and oenology to learn and refine modern vineyard and winemaking techniques. Becoming a winegrower marked the beginning of a dream. With a head full of projects and ambitions, I decided to build my own winery and create my estate.

Being a winegrower is a multifaceted and deeply rewarding profession: scientific through oenology, close to nature through vineyard work, and commercial through the relationships and encounters it allows. The challenge was met in 2006 with the creation of Domaine Les Trois Terres, which today extends over just over twenty-two hectares of vines and olive trees.

I vinify all three wine colours. The ingredients behind these wines lie in the alchemy of different terroirs, grape varieties and vinification methods, brought together through blending, guided by ancestral know-how, lunar cycles and innovative techniques.

All that remains is to sit under the Provençal sun, in the shade of an olive tree, lulled by the sound of cicadas, closing our eyes to savour this nectar, wine, which brings together moments of happiness."

MAISON AUSTRUY

CHÂTEAU PEYRASSOL

Before becoming one of the leading producers of Provence rosé wines, the estate had already made its mark on history in a way few wine estates can claim.

Archaeological evidence traces human presence on the site back to the early Iron Age, around 1000 BC. The Gallo Roman period left even stronger testimony, notably the remains of a vast architectural complex with massive walls, clearly intended for agricultural use.

It was, however, at the beginning of the 13th century that the Commanderie de Peyrassol truly entered history, establishing its enduring identity and legacy.

THE CORSICAN VINEYARD

Corsican vineyards cover around 6,000 hectares, shaped by a wide range of soils (granite, schist, limestone) and a Mediterranean climate moderated by both sea and mountains. They rely on distinctive native grape varieties such as Niellucciu, Sciaccarellu and Vermentinu, showcased through 9 PDOs that express the island's strong identity and premium positioning.Alongside this, the IGP Île de Beauté, spanning the entire island and accounting for nearly two-thirds of production, offers greater freedom. It allows both local and international grape varieties, producing supple red wines, fresh rosés and approachable whites, and serves as the commercial showcase of Corsican wines.

THE RHÔNE VALLEY VINEYARD

With more than 75,000 hectares under vine and annual production exceeding 3 million hectoliters, the Rhône Valley is the second largest French vineyard after Bordeaux.

It stretches over more than 200 kilometers, from Vienne in the north to Avignon in the south, along both banks of the Rhône River and its main tributaries: the Drôme, home to the Diois vineyard; the Calavon, associated with Ventoux; the right bank of the lower Durance, linked to the Luberon; and part of the Gard, including the Costières de Nîmes.

This exceptional diversity, combined with the influence of terroir, gives rise to wines that are powerful, generous and structured, yet always marked by balance and finesse.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

CÔTES DU RHONE, VILLAGES & CRUS

COTES DU RHONE

This is the broadest category, encompassing a large proportion of wines produced across the region. Wines may be red, white or rosé, and are typically based on blends of several grape varieties.

COTES DU RHONE VILLAGE

This category brings together wines from specific villages, with quality requirements higher than those of the Côtes du Rhône AOP. These wines are generally more concentrated and more expressive.

CRUS DES COTES DU RHONE

The most prestigious appellations, representing top tier wines with a strong sense of identity. Among the best known crus are Châteauneuf du Pape, Gigondas, Hermitage and Côte Rôtie.

The Rhône Valley brings together around 6,000 winegrowers, making it one of the most dynamic and diverse vineyards in France.

The wines of the Rhône Valley express with clarity the richness and diversity of a great terroir shaped by sun, wind and river. From generous southern appellations to the more refined northern crus, they offer a deep aromatic palette combining ripe fruit, spices, garrigue and floral notes.

Here, emblematic grape varieties such as Syrah, Grenache and Mourvèdre convey a subtle balance between power, freshness and elegance, giving rise to sincere, expressive wines deeply rooted in their identity.

Luberon wines are the southernmost wines of the Rhône Valley. Our vineyard is located on the northern slope of the Luberon (Ménerbes, Oppède, Maubec, Robion), on predominantly limestone soils with extensive stony deposits. This very distinctive exposure gives our wines a great deal of freshness and elegance

LUBERON ROSÉ

Luberon rosé (AOP) wines are produced from blends of Grenache, Syrah and Cinsault, grown on a Mediterranean terroir refreshed by the Luberon massif. Pale in colour, aromatic and vibrant, they combine Provençal elegance with freshness and account for nearly half of the appellation's total production.

A STORY OF PASSION AND COMMITMENT

Telling the story of the Cave de Gallician means telling the deep attachment of its winegrowers to an exceptional terroir, destined since its origins to produce wines of excellence. THE DISTINCTIVE ASSETS OF AN EXCEPTIONAL TERROIR

At the crossroads between the southern plateau of the Costières de Nîmes and the Rhône Valley, the Gallician Signature vineyard stretches from rolling hills to the lagoons of the Camargue.This generous terroir, at the heart of Occitania, benefits from abundant sunshine and terraces of rolled pebbles. When the call of the Mediterranean is felt, the wind clears the skies and becomes a beneficial ally for the vine. GR Vins was born from the meeting of two oenologists from the southern Rhône Valley: David Risoul, technical director and consultant, and Emmanuel Gagnepain, consulting oenologist in the southern Rhône Valley and Corsica. Their desire to work together to craft a range of wines sourced from distinctive terroirs around the Mediterranean, combining freshness and minerality, led to the creation of GR Vins.

A SIGNATURE

GR Vins is a range of identity driven wines whose main defining characteristic is minerality. Precision, freshness, length and salinity are the hallmarks of the wines' signature.

THE STRENGTH

The strength of GR Vins comes from the quality of its sourcing, which is intentionally demanding and selective. Through their experience, David Risoul and Emmanuel Gagnepain have identified terroirs that align with their convictions in order to craft great wines from the south.GR Vins selects part of the production so that vinification and ageing can take place at the estate, in demi muids, allowing the future wines of the GR Vins range to come to life and fully express themselves..

THE TERROIR

A deep understanding of each plot's annual cycle, as well as every stage of vinification and ageing, is what ensures the quality of the finished wines. Long standing winegrowers and friends trust the guidance of Emmanuel Gagnepain and now supply GR Vins with the grapes that lie at the origin of these wines.

AN ASSURED RECOGNITION

Wine competitions in France, such as the Concours Général Agricole in Paris, the Challenge International du Vin in Bordeaux, or the Vinalies, help to highlight the quality and know how of producers. The principle is simple: winegrowers enter their cuvées, the bottles are anonymised, then tasted blind by a jury made up of professionals (oenologists, sommeliers, wine merchants, journalists) and sometimes well informed amateurs. Wines are assessed based on appearance, aromas and balance on the palate. Following the tastings, medals (gold, silver, bronze) or special distinctions are awarded, offering winners genuine professional recognition. For producers, this is a commercial advantage and a trust marker for consumers, while for the general public these competitions provide a quality reference point and a tribute to French wine terroirs.

A TEMPERATE YET DEMANDING CLIMATE

Bordeaux's oceanic climate, mild but sometimes unpredictable, requires constant vigilance from winegrowers. Maritime influences help limit extremes, while year to year variations give rise to very distinctive vintages. This climatic challenge contributes to the identity and uniqueness of each harvest.

MORE RESPONSIBLE VITICULTURE

More and more Bordeaux estates are embracing organic, biodynamic or environmental approaches. This shift reflects a shared ambition: to preserve soils, strengthen vine vitality and produce more authentic wines, aligned with today's consumer expectations.

THE VINEYARD

The Bordeaux vineyard is one of the largest and most iconic in the world. Located in south western France, around the Garonne, the Dordogne and the Gironde estuary, this mosaic of terroirs and landscapes gives rise to an incredible diversity of wines, recognised for their elegance, complexity and ageing potential.

A LANDSCAPE SHAPED BY WATER

In Bordeaux, water plays a fundamental role. Rivers structure the vineyard into major distinct areas: the Left Bank, the Right Bank and Entre-Deux-Mers. These waterways regulate temperatures, protect against climatic extremes and contribute to the richness of the soils, offering ideal conditions for growing vines.

THE LEFT BANK

The Left Bank, which notably includes the Médoc and Graves, is renowned for structured, deep wines built for ageing. Dominated by Cabernet Sauvignon, these wines offer aromas of black fruit, cedar, spice and sometimes graphite. Their tannic framework and freshness make them global benchmarks for longevity and balance.

THE RIGHT BANK

On the Right Bank, around Saint-Émilion and Pomerol, Merlot reigns supreme. Wines are often softer, more generous and more approachable in their youth, while still offering excellent ageing potential. They appeal through notes of ripe fruit, plum, truffle and a velvety texture.

A FAMILY BUSINESS

It was in 1887 that the first member of the Boudigue family purchased the land and the house that would later become Château La Haute Brande. The name comes from the local place name “brande”, referring to heather, and “haute”, meaning “high”, as the vines are planted on the highest plots, in contrast with the area known as “Basse Brande”. Passed down from father to son and remaining entirely family owned, the estate is now managed by the fourth generation of the family’s children.

METICULOUSLY CRAFTED RED WINES

Careful and attentive vineyard management is carried out throughout the year, allowing the grapes to be harvested at optimal ripeness to express their full potential.Healthy grapes are then transferred to stainless steel tanks. Vinification is conducted with precise temperature control: the grape juice is first cooled to 6°C during a pre-fermentation maceration to extract aromas, before alcoholic fermentation begins. A final warm phase at the end of fermentation adds structure, resulting in a wine with ageing potential..

Wine is not just a bottle to be opened; it is a moment to be created.A meal with friends, an improvised table, a conversation that lingers...Wine accompanies these moments without ever fixing them in time.It brings people together, creates connections, and invites us to slow down.

Drinking wine is not about seeking perfection, but about the pleasure of being together.Wine is discovered, discussed, sometimes debated, and most often shared.There is no right or wrong way to enjoy it — only emotions, memories and tastes that evolve over time.

For a new generation of wine lovers, wine is experienced without pretence. Authenticity, sincerity and conviviality come first. Accessible, easy-drinking wines made to be opened rather than stored, shared rather than explained. Wine becomes a simple, living language.

Because, in the end, the most beautiful wine is not always the rarest or the most expensive, but the one enjoyed at the right moment, with the right people.

Wine is rarely experienced alone.It is shared around a table, during an impromptu aperitif, a meal with friends or a moment that stretches on without constraint.More than a product, it becomes a pretext for meeting, exchange and conviviality.Today, wine is enjoyed with greater freedom and fewer rules.It is opened for pleasure, to accompany a moment, without chasing perfection.It is in this sincere and spontaneous sharing that wine finds its true meaning:a simple link between people, tastes and emotions.

SAINTE-FOY-VINS

They go out to meet the vineyards, travel across appellations and take the time to engage with winegrowers. In the field, they taste, observe and compare, in search of well-balanced cuvées capable of delivering the best compromise between quality, character and accessibility. Each wine is selected for the story it tells, its potential, and its ability to naturally find its audience, both in France and internationally..

They support each project throughout its development, from visual identity to the final expression of the product. Labels, packaging, aesthetic choices and positioning are designed on a bespoke basis, in close alignment with market expectations. Each cuvée thus becomes a wine in its own right, conceived together, faithful to its origin while carrying a strong, coherent and distinctive signature.

What makes the bottle...

... Farming practices

ORGANIC FARMING

Organic farming is based on viticulture that respects both the vine and its environment, excluding all synthetic products. Soils are mechanically worked, and vineyard protection relies on natural solutions such as copper and sulphur. This approach promotes more balanced vines and a truer expression of terroir, while requiring the winegrower's constant presence in response to climatic conditions.

HIGH ENVIRONMENTAL VALUE (HVE)

The HVE certification promotes a comprehensive approach to environmental responsibility, based on biodiversity preservation, responsible resource management and reduced inputs.Treatments remain authorised but are strictly regulated, offering a balance between viticultural performance and environmental commitment, adapted to real vineyard conditions.

BIODYNAMICS

Biodynamics views the vineyard as a living ecosystem, in which each element interacts naturally.Built on the principles of organic farming, it incorporates natural preparations and work in harmony with lunar and seasonal cycles.This demanding approach aims to strengthen soil vitality and the vine's natural resistance, giving rise to wines of great precision and strong identity.

TERRA VITIS

Terra Vitis is a responsible viticulture certification based on observation and traceability. It promotes reasoned practices that respect the environment, people and the economic balance of estates, with the aim of producing quality wines while ensuring the long-term preservation of the vineyard.

SUSTAINABLE (REASONED) FARMING

Sustainable farming is based on careful observation and measured intervention. Treatments are applied only when necessary, in order to limit environmental impact while ensuring the quality and consistency of the harvests.

What makes the bottle... ... James Suckling

James Suckling is one of the most influential wine critics in the world, particularly followed for his coverage of Bordeaux, Italy and leading international wines. He rates wines on a 100-point scale, based on blind or semi-blind tastings, with a strong focus on immediate pleasure, fruit precision and overall balance.

CHÂTEAU La Rose Figeac POMEROL

n 1961, Château La Tour Figeac, a Saint-Émilion Grand Cru Classé, acquired the neighbouring estate located in the Pomerol appellation.Around this small vineyard, additional parcels were gradually brought together and the estate was renamed Château La Rose Figeac.

NATHALIE DESPAGNE :
"I wanted the very best for my vineyard, and choosing organic farming quickly became the obvious path.Today, I simply cannot imagine producing wine without being in full harmony with nature and with myself.What I seek is the vine's fulfilment, combined with safe and healthy working conditions for my team."

A HARMONIOUS CRAFT

From her arrival at the estate, Nathalie Despagne chose to uphold the commitment to organic farming. This environmentally respectful approach has been certified by Ecocert since 2009."Allowing terroir to express itself freely means first and foremost respecting it — not trying to force or tame it, but rather learning to work with it. This is how wines are born: with refined tannins, purity, depth, elegance, freshness and density — wines that charm, even in their youth, at the time of tasting."

Patrice Haverlan
VIGNOBLES

At the origin of it all was passion, born in 1906.For Jules Haverlan, there was no question of inheritance or family legacy. A native of Arras, a land without vineyards, he made a bold choice: to become a winegrower. He left the North, embraced the South-West and acquired Château Le Bourdillot in the commune of Virelade.

His intuition proved right. The property already appeared on an 1818 map and was formerly part of an estate belonging to the Comte de Lych, of the Lynch-Bages family. It is here that the story of Vignobles Haverlan truly began. His son Paul took over the vines with the same passion, enriched by his father's experience.

Then came Louis, the third generation, chosen among six children to work the land. Determined and committed, he expanded the vineyard and became a key figure in bottled wine sales in Portets.

In 1956, his marriage to Thérèse Laconfourque, from a family of winegrower-merchants, led to the integration of Domaine des Lucques, also located in the Graves appellation. Both estates were then vinified and aged on this site.

In 1986, Patrice Haverlan took over the reins, eighty years after his grandfather Jules, and has since continued to develop the family estate.

With its deep colour and ruby highlights, this wine seduces with a powerful, complex bouquet combining ripe fruit and vanilla notes. On the palate, it reveals a supple, silky structure supported by smooth tannins and a fine length. Elegant in its youth, it gains further depth and complexity with time.

Best enjoyed with a charcuterie platter, a roasted rack of lamb or a leg of mutton.

THE BURGUNDY VINEYARD

A territory with an unrivalled heritage, ideally located just one hour from Lyon and two hours from Paris. Its position in the north-eastern part of France also places it close to major European capitals. This favourable location is nothing new. Since Antiquity — and even more so during the Middle Ages — the Burgundy vineyard has stood along a major trade route linking Northern Europe to the Mediterranean basin. Acting as a crossroads between the Rhône corridor and the Paris Basin, Burgundy has long been a historic place of passage and exchange..

Burgundy red wines stand out for their finesse of texture and their subtle expression of terroir. Rather than power, they seek elegance, purity of fruit and balance. Their delicate structure, supported by great aromatic complexity, makes them wines of emotion and gastronomy.

Burgundy white wines are recognized worldwide for their brightness and depth. Combining tension, breadth and minerality, they accurately reflect the diversity of limestone soils. Their aromatic precision and ageing potential make them true benchmarks among the world's great white wines.

AGE-WORTHY WHITE WINES

Dry white wines from Burgundy improve with time.For many of them, it is hardly conceivable to begin tasting before five years of ageing.Some great whites from the Côte de Beaune or Chablis may even reach their peak only after 15 to 20 years in the cellar.

THE KINGDOM OF CHARDONNAY

An almost unique grape variety that finds its noblest expression here.Depending on the terroir, it can be vibrant and incisive, with flinty and citrus notes (as in Chablis),or generous and velvety, revealing notes of butter, hazelnut and honey in the grands crus.

What makes the bottle... ... Chablis, a name

CHABLIS

Offers complex depth and a precise, elegant style that has made it a global reference.

PETIT CHABLIS

Seductive for its immediate freshness and easy-drinking appeal.

CLOSERIE DES ALISIERS

The wines of Closerie des Alisiers represent a range of Burgundy wines, produced almost exclusively from Pinot Noir for the red wines and Chardonnay for the white wines (with a few Aligoté cuvées also completing the range).These wines express the complexity and authenticity that define Burgundy.

Blends are always selected by the same team, which also oversees the entire bottling process.

This organisation allows the estate to remain independent and agile, in order to respond efficiently to consumer needs.

FOOD & WINE PAIRINGS

Food and wine pairings are based on a simple principle: creating harmony between the dish and the wine, without either overpowering the other. These are not fixed rules, but a play of balance between flavours, textures and intensity. Acidity, tannins, sweetness or freshness in the wine must interact with the richness, fat, structure or finesse of the dish. When well thought out, a pairing elevates the whole and turns tasting into a true sensory experience, where the wine reveals the dish as much as the dish reveals the wine.

Wine extends cuisine; cuisine reveals wine.

CONTRAST PAIRING

The wine balances the dish by opposing certain of its characteristics. Freshness against richness, vibrancy against intensity, lightness against power. This type of pairing brings relief and tension, energizing the tasting experience..

RESONNANCE PAIRING

The wine and the dish share the same aromatic or emotional signature. Flavours echo, respond to and reinforce one another naturally. Here, the goal is not technical balance, but sensory harmony, where wine and food vibrate on the same wavelength.

COMPLEMENTARY PAIRING

The wine accompanies and extends the flavours of the dish. A continuity of textures and aromas is sought, without rupture. This pairing works particularly well when wine and food share a similar richness or sweetness, creating a natural and reassuring harmony.

REGIONAL PAIRING

Regional pairing is rooted in a cultural and gastronomic obviousness: wines and dishes born of the same terroir often share a natural harmony. Shaped by a common climate, local produce and shared traditions, they instinctively balance each other at the table. Simple in appearance, this pairing is often one of the most accurate, as it respects both the identity of the wine and that of the cuisine, without artifice, in a spirit of authenticity and conviviality.

AGE-WORTHY WINES

An age-worthy wine is designed to evolve positively over time. As it ages, its aromas, texture and balance develop: primary fruit notes gradually give way to more complex aromas such as spice, leather, forest floor and dried fruits, while the structure becomes more refined.

Red wines naturally contain more tannins, extracted from the skins, seeds and sometimes from oak during vinification. These tannins act as natural antioxidants, protecting the wine from oxidation and allowing it to evolve slowly over time.

White wines rely more on acidity than on tannins. While some concentrated, high-acid whites can age very well, the majority are intended to be enjoyed in their youth, for their freshness, vibrancy and aromatic purity.

Rosé wines, vinified with very limited skin contact, contain little tannin. Their lighter structure favours freshness and fruit expression, generally making them wines to be enjoyed young.

SHORT AGEING (1 TO 3 YEARS)

Fresh, approachable wines focused on fruit and vibrancy. Their light structure makes them suitable for early consumption, preserving their aromatic brightness and easy-drinking appeal.

MEDIUM AGEING (3 TO 8 YEARS)

Balanced wines with good concentration and a harmonious structure. Over time, they gain complexity while retaining freshness and a clear expression of terroir.

LONG AGEING (8 YEARS AND BEYOND)

Powerful, structured wines, rich in tannins and acidity. Designed for slow ageing, they develop deep aromas and great finesse after several years in the cellar.

STORING BOTTLES HORIZONTALLY

Storing bottles horizontally keeps the cork moist, preventing it from drying out and allowing air to enter. This protects the wine from oxidation and ensures proper ageing, particularly for wines intended for long-term cellaring.

OLD VINES
85 YEARS

The history of the Château de Fleys estate begins in the late 19th century with the arrival of Julien Philippon in Fleys.
Originally from Vézelay (Morvan), where he worked as a woodcutter, he settled in the Chablis area and acquired woodland, land and vineyards that still make up almost the entire estate today.
Since then, the domaine has been passed down from father to son.

In 1988, André Philippon purchased the Château de Fleys (the estate's headquarters) along with its one-hectare clos.
The building is a former hunting lodge dating from the late 17th century, once owned by the Seigneur de Parthenay, squire to Louis XIV.

In 2006, Béatrice and Benoît, André Philippon's children, built a new, more suitable and modern winery at 2 rue des Fourneaux.
Today, Julien's great-grandchildren — Béatrice, Benoît and Olivier (who joined in 2007) — run the estate, respecting family tradition while also embracing modernisation in the pursuit of ever-higher wine quality.

BEAUJOLAIS

The Beaujolais vineyard stretches over 50 km in length and 15 km in width, east of the Saône River, between Mâcon to the north and Lyon to the south. Although it is legally part of wine-growing Burgundy, it stands apart in many ways: through its landscape of gentle hills and valleys, its sandy soils and ancient rocks, its grape varieties with the near-exclusive dominance of red wines made from Gamay, and finally through its distinct vineyard practices and winemaking methods.

While Beaujolais Nouveau has largely contributed to the region's reputation, it represents only a brief and very specific facet of its identity. Beaujolais is above all expressed through terroir-driven wines that are precise and sincere, born of increasingly demanding viticultural practices. Today, the crus and single-vineyard cuvées reveal genuine depth, strong gastronomic appeal and, for certain expressions, real ageing potential. This qualitative approach has restored full nobility to a vineyard long caricatured, now recognized for its authenticity and diversity of expression.

3 MAIN AOPs
16 GEOGRAPHICAL DENOMINATIONS

The wines of Savoie are built around three main AOPs: Vin de Savoie, expressing the diversity of terroirs and styles; Roussette de Savoie, deeply rooted in regional tradition; and Seyssel, more confidential, renowned for the finesse of its wines, both still and sparkling..

The Vin de Savoie AOP stands out for its system of geographical denominations, integrated within the appellation itself. These indications specify the origin of the wines and reflect the diversity of Savoyard terroirs, while remaining under a single appellation. This distinctive feature allows for a wide range of styles and a refined, nuanced reading of the vineyard

A PIONEER

Jean Perrier et Fils played a decisive role in establishing the reputation of Savoie wines far beyond their region of origin. The house was among the first to structure the bottling and large-scale distribution of Savoyard wines, helping to introduce these Alpine wines to French tables and later to international markets, while remaining firmly rooted in its local heritage.

ALSACE

The Alsace vineyard stretches along the foothills of the Vosges Mountains, on a narrow east–south-east facing strip, benefiting from a semi-continental climate that is among the driest in France. This setting protects the vines from climatic extremes and promotes slow, even ripening, resulting in wines that are precise, expressive and marked by great aromatic purity.

Alsace stands out for a unique approach in France: wines are predominantly identified by grape variety, highlighted on the label. This varietal reading makes it easier to understand wine styles while leaving ample room for the expression of terroir. The wines are essentially white, ranging from dry to off-dry, with a strong and distinctive aromatic identity.

This artisanal approach still endures today: each parcel is worked with patience and humility, allowing the wine to tell the story of those who make it, generation after generation.

MARSALA

Born in Sicily, in the Trapani area, Marsala is a fortified wine produced through fortification (mutage), much like Port or Sherry. It is available in both dry and sweet styles, offering rich aromas of dried fruits, caramel, vanilla and, depending on ageing, hints of coffee.

Traditionally, Marsala is enjoyed as an aperitif or a digestif, slightly chilled in its dry versions, and at room temperature for the sweeter styles. In cooking, it is equally prized, enhancing desserts such as tiramisù as well as sauces served with poultry and meats.

Cognac
RAGNAUD-SABOURIN
Cognac Grande Champagne
Appellation Cognac Grande Champagne Contrôlée
1er Cru de Cognac

Since 1850, the Ragnaud Sabourin family has farmed vineyards located in the heart of Grande Champagne, the premier cru of Cognac. All Cognacs from the House have been produced and marketed for four generations exclusively from high-end eaux-de-vie distilled on the estate, without blending different crus.

DISTILLATION

Our Cognacs are distilled in traditional Charentais copper stills using the time-honoured method of double distillation. We distil on the lees, which gives our eaux-de-vie great suppleness as well as rich, complex aromas..

AGEING

With a constant focus on quality and purity, our eaux-de-vie are then patiently aged in our family cellars.We hold substantial stocks, and this unique situation within Cognac allows us to remain free in our approach — producing only the very best quality in limited quantities and perpetuating the spirit of the House since 1850.

BLENDING

Marcel Ragnaud was an exemplary Cellar Master and a great winegrower. Since then, Ragnaud Sabourin has preserved the founder's artistry and passion, following the rhythm of the harvests and the Charentais distillation seasons.

Brasserie de L'ÂNE VOLANT

LA BRASSERIE DE L'ANE VOLANT

Nestled at the foot of the Maures massif, along the road from Repenti to Gonfaron, lies a small craft brewery with an intriguing and playful name: Brasserie de l'Âne Volant. Founded in 2020, this microbrewery is the result of a shared passion: a winegrower from the Var and a brewer from Alsace. Two worlds coming together to create beers deeply rooted in their terroir.

The name is no coincidence. It refers to an old local legend from Gonfaron, telling of a donkey that, by miracle or divine mischief, is said to have flown over a ravine. A symbol of audacity and of the improbable made possible, it perfectly embodies the spirit of the brewery.

HONEY REFERMENTATION

Carefully selected ingredients, and a distinctive feature that sets the brewery apart: the use of honey from the Maures apiaries for the second fermentation in bottle. The beers are neither filtered nor pasteurised, in order to preserve their full authenticity..
